SALT LAKE CITY (ABC 4 News) - Utah Congressman Chris Cannon will soon learn his political fate. On Saturday, Utah republicans will hold their state convention and Cannon is facing challenges from four other republicans.

Leading the pack of challengers is Jason Chaffetz and David Leavitt, brother of former governor Mike Leavitt.

According to some political observers, this may be Cannon's toughest re-election battle ever.

Kirk Jowers of the Hinckley Institute of Politics says, "I think it's completely unlikely that we get out of this convention without a primary."

Also in the race are a third party candidate and democrat Bennion Spencer.
